Cleaning:

Proper maintenance is crucial to preserving the beauty and longevity of both marble and travertine. Marble requires regular cleaning with pH-neutral products to prevent etching and staining. It's important to wipe up spills immediately and to reseat the stone periodically to protect its surface. Travertine, due to its porous nature, also requires regular cleaning and sealing. Using stone-specific cleaners helps maintain its appearance, and applying a sealant every 1-2 years is recommended to protect against stains and moisture damage.
